

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to methods for consistently designating appropriate treatment protocols for patients, particularly protocols involving wounds or wound prevention. Specifically, the invention relates to methods wherein a patient condition such as a wound is assessed against defined scales for classifying and grading, which assessment is used in a visual decision tree device to identify one or more components of a treatment protocol.

005744-0190